

The Adani Group, which took over the administration of Thiruvananthapuram International Airport in October of last year, is now putting the pedal to the metal to make it world-class, with the most recent proposed acquisition being a state-of-the-art facility just a short distance from the airport.

According to a source, talks have reached a conclusion, and a deal is close to being signed to take over the facility, which is currently operational.

In fact, the Adani Group is now working on the Vizhinjam Port, which is roughly 15 kilometres from the airport.
