

The Assam government recently opened the 70-megawatt Amguri Solar Park in an effort to enhance the state's power industry by focusing on renewable energy.

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma inaugurated the 70-megawatt Amguri Solar Park, with an emphasis on renewable energy, in an effort to enhance the state's power industry. Despite having vast natural resources, Sarma claims that the state has lagged behind in harnessing the renewable energy sector's potential owing to a lack of appropriate planning. He stated that the Amguri Solar Park would strengthen the electricity sector even more, and that this project will always be remembered as a watershed moment in the state's history.
