

The ethanol bio-refinery plant being built by Bharat Petroleum Corporation Limited in the Bargarh district of Odisha, according to Union Minister Dharmendra Pradhan, will accelerate sustainable development and green growth.

The area's youth would have work prospects thanks to the ethanol plant, according to Pradhan, the union minister of education and skill development, who visited the project site. The facility will use garbage, ruined rice, and straw to make ethanol. Farmers in the neighbouring areas, such as Bargarh, Sambalpur, Sonapur, and Balangir, will benefit from an increase in income. He said that local residents will have more chances for work and self-employment.
