

Amazon India has established a new Delivery Station in Bengaluru, Karnataka.

The new station, which is almost 30,000 square feet in size, would allow Amazon to enhance its last-mile delivery network and assure speedier deliveries across Bengaluru ahead of the approaching festive season.

Out of the existing network of 130 Amazon owned and partner delivery stations in the state, this is the state's largest delivery station. Investments in Delivery Stations allow for smoother and speedier last-mile delivery of goods to clients in the region, while also creating local jobs in the city.

Amazon Logistics director Prakash Rochlani said, "In line with our vision of making e-commerce a part of everyday life, and transforming how India buys and sells, we have expanded our last mile delivery network in the State and also opened a new large delivery station spread across 30,000 square feet of space in Bengaluru."
