

Daiki Axis Japan intends to build its third facility in the nation in the southern area. According to Daiki Axis India CEO Kamal Tiwari in an interview with PTI, the business is constructing its second factory in Palwal, Haryana, with a capacity to create 1,000 sewage treatment units using Japanese “Johkasou” technology.

“One of our plants is in Vapi, Gujarat, and a second one will soon be built in Haryana. Another one is in the works for southern India “said he.

The construction of the Palwal facility would cost roughly Rs 200 crore.

A division of Daiki Axis Japan, which is based in Japan, is Daiki Axis India.
