

Mattress maker Duroflex India, which just entered into furniture, said it is set to double production capacity.

“After being in the mattress business for over five decades, we ventured into furniture segment recently. Buoyed by the response, we are planning to set up a new unit at Indore to double the production capacity,” said chief managing director Mathew Chandy.

“We are a zero-waste company. Almost all the materials are reused, and some are sourced locally. When we had surplus [wastes] in the form of foams, fabrics, cushion and wood, we decided it use for making a value-added product,” he said.
