

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) has issued a request for proposals (RFP) for the construction of a six-lane, access-controlled roadway in Uttar Pradesh.

Under Bharatmala Pariyojana Phase-I, the project will create an access-controlled highway from Gogwan Jalalpur (Shamli district) to Ranipur Barsi (Saharanpur district) (from ch - (000.600) to 45.500) of the Shamli-Ambala part of the Bareilly-Ludhiana Economic Corridor (Package-1).

The project's anticipated cost is Rs 990.98 crore, and it will take 24 months to complete.
