

Aircraft Engine maker Pratt & Whitney (PW) said that it will establish an engineering centre in Bengaluru. The facility is expected to open in January 2023.

According to a spokeswoman, the centre, which will be the company's sixth location overall and first in Asia Pacific, would allow the company to provide contract engineering services to both local and foreign clients.

Centers for PW's integrated international engineering activities are now located in Poland, Puerto Rico, Canada, and the United States.
