

The world's largest pharmaceutical company, Sanofi, announced that it will establish its global medical centre in Hyderabad to support its expansion plans and develop the workforce of the future. The company now expects to employ 350 workers at the GMH, with hopes to increase that number soon. Mathew Cherian, head of group of sites, said the GMH in Telangana will be a key part of the company's vision for 2025, which includes expanding its activities and assessing the establishment of new ones. "The hub will drive innovation, research and development in healthcare, leveraging Sanofi's experience," he said.
