

The Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority plans to build a new multimodal logistics park in TappalBajna Urban Centre, Uttar Pradesh. The project includes developing, operating, and maintaining a 200-acre logistics park with infrastructure facilities such as truck terminals, office space, and gate complexes. The project will be a public-private partnership, with only 10 acres available for commercial use by the concessionaire, 12 acres for institutional use, and 24 acres for residential use. The project is expected to cost Rs. 9900 million, with the construction period for phase-1 lasting two years from the appointed date. The Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority is a state government agency responsible for the development of the Yamuna Expressway and the surrounding region. The agency aims to promote economic development and infrastructure in the region by attracting investment and creating job opportunities. The proposed multimodal logistics park will be an essential project for the agency, as it will improve the logistics infrastructure in the region and support economic growth.
