

Zoom Video Communications said that ZVC India, its Indian subsidiary, has opened its technology centre, the first in Tamil Nadu and the second in the country.

Zoom's development ambitions included the opening of a technology centre in Chennai to complement the company's current Bengaluru facility.

According to a business statement, the corporation operates two data centres in Mumbai and Hyderabad.

The Chennai Technology Centre will be a key source of innovation for Zoom, focusing on the research and development of new products such as the Zoom Contact Center and cutting-edge technology to create a communications platform.
